SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

Site is a structure. The structure is made of stone or concrete. The dimensions of the structure are that it rises sharply from relatively flat sides or base supports. The actual construction materials appear to be oversized tan or white brick (see page 60). There is something that rises high and dark behind the structure -- off in the distance.

The structure is somewhat central to it's surroundings. It is used as a relaying point of sorts (NOW) like a library, city hall, theatres, it is something used or seen regularly.

There are ornate aspects to the decoration of the structure (see sketch page 2, day 2). It is older, probably late 1800 to early 1900 in construction. The purpose of the site seems to reflect related to art or remembrance of some event or person in history. The site is meant to preserve the memory of the event or persons.

There were perceptions of war, opposing forces in facing lines or ranks. There were trees, remparts, embattlements, smoke and haze. I think that the structure is some kind of war memorial.
